Overhaul causes gridlock

New government likely to start with some old Cabinet members

By Kim Min-joon

The political fighting over government reorganization is threatening to delay the launch of President-elect Lee Myung-bak’s Cabinet. Lee announced the nomination of his cabinet on February 15. But his political rivals have not been persuaded by his appointments, leaving the country in a state of uncertainty.

The opposition parties are still in talks with President-elect Lee, hoping that his cabinet will include some of their candidates.

Lee previously submitted his proposal to the National Assembly, but the opposition parties are not convinced. They have not yet decided whether to work with the new government.

DPL battle: Hard sell begins

 Castro resigns Cuban presidency

Page 8

Page 9

New culture minister

New Culture Minister Park Myung-tram said that she would work to improve her government’s handling of cultural issues, which have been controversial in recent years. The appointment of a new minister has been a long time coming, as the previous cabinet member was not confirmed by the National Assembly.

Korea’s options for coping with U.S. slump

Page 11

Page 12

Food price hikes weigh on consumers

By Kim Young-ri

An increase in the price of food and drinks has brought the government under pressure to take action. The recent rise in prices has been driven by a shortage of supplies and increased production costs. The government has been criticized for not taking immediate action to control the prices.

Food prices have increased significantly in recent months. The government has been urged to take action to stabilize prices.

Herald Media names new CEO

By Jin Dong-won

Herald Media Group announced that Park Hong-keun has been appointed as the new CEO. Park has been with the company for many years and has held various positions in different departments. His appointment is expected to bring new energy to the company.

A customer who recently visited a local discount store reported that they could not afford to buy low-priced products. The prices of food and drinks have increased significantly, making it difficult for many people to afford them.

The Food and Drug Administration has been closely monitoring the situation, but the government has yet to take any action to address the issue.

Call 198-803 for subscriptions and delivery of The Korea Herald, The Herald Business and The Junior Herald.
Korea's options for coping with U.S. slump

Lee government would do well to urge Beijing to embrace more rapid currency appreciation

By Berry Eichengreen

Korea’s options for coping with the U.S. slump are far from exhausted, according to new research. The country has a number of options for improving its external balance, including currency appreciation, but the pace of appreciation has been slow. The Lee government would be wise to urge Beijing to adopt a more rapid pace of currency appreciation.

Korea faces a number of challenges in coping with the U.S. slump. The country has a large current account deficit, and its currency is undervalued relative to the dollar. The pace of currency appreciation has been slow, and the government has been hesitant to push for a more rapid pace of appreciation.

Korea has a number of options for improving its external balance, including currency appreciation. The pace of appreciation has been slow, and the government has been hesitant to push for a more rapid pace of appreciation.

In making these points, Korea has a number of options for improving its external balance, including currency appreciation. The pace of appreciation has been slow, and the government has been hesitant to push for a more rapid pace of appreciation.

Koreans humanize treasured gateway ruined by arsonist

As a traditional Korean goods hub, the loss of a major port has met with a strong reaction from the local community. A large fire that swept through the port of Busan on Monday has met with a strong reaction from the local community. The fire, which started in the early hours of Monday morning, spread quickly and destroyed many of the port’s structures.

The city of Busan is home to many of the country’s largest ports and is a major gateway for the country’s exports. The fire has caused significant damage to the port, and the city has called for an investigation into the cause of the fire.

The city of Busan is home to many of the country’s largest ports and is a major gateway for the country’s exports. The fire has caused significant damage to the port, and the city has called for an investigation into the cause of the fire.

In the aftermath of the fire, the city of Busan has called for an investigation into the cause of the fire. The city has also expressed its condolences to the families of those who lost their homes in the fire.

The city of Busan is home to many of the country’s largest ports and is a major gateway for the country’s exports. The fire has caused significant damage to the port, and the city has called for an investigation into the cause of the fire.